1.1 Conference Overview

The 9th International Conference on Food and Nutrition - KL (ICFN-2026) brings together researchers, academicians, healthcare professionals, nutritionists, food scientists, industry experts, policymakers, and students to exchange knowledge and foster collaboration in advancing food and nutrition sciences. Scheduled for 29th & 30th May, 2026 in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, the conference provides an international platform to present innovative research, discuss emerging technologies, and explore sustainable solutions that address global nutrition challenges. Through keynote sessions, technical presentations, and networking opportunities, ICFN-2026 aims to inspire interdisciplinary partnerships that promote healthier communities, resilient food systems, and sustainable development worldwide.

1.2 Conference Theme

Innovative Food Systems and Sustainable Nutrition for Global Health emphasizes developing resilient, inclusive, and sustainable food systems that enhance nutrition and public health. The conference explores innovative approaches in food production, nutrition science, food security, and policy to address global health challenges while supporting environmental sustainability and long-term well-being.

1.3 Objectives & Scope of the Conference

The 9th International Conference on Food and Nutrition - KL (ICFN-2026) aims to advance scientific knowledge and promote collaboration in food science, nutrition, and public health. The conference provides a global platform for researchers, academicians, healthcare professionals, industry experts, and policymakers to share innovative research, emerging technologies, and best practices. Its scope covers sustainable food systems, clinical and community nutrition, food safety, food biotechnology, functional foods, nutrigenomics, food security, and nutrition policy. By encouraging interdisciplinary discussions and international partnerships, ICFN-2026 seeks to develop practical solutions that improve global health, strengthen food resilience, and support the achievement of sustainable development goals.
