Dear ((IFERP Member)),

IFERP is delighted to present to you the news update and accomplishments for the month of June. To underline the distinction between learning and skill development, we completely redesigned our architecture.

Learning is a self-process, whereas developing skills involves identifying a person's interests and giving them the guidance, they need to achieve their objectives. IFRP streamlined the process of skill development by adding new scientific activities with the same interest to communicate, network, exchange, and work together in their intended interest.

Click here to visit the list of upcoming conferences and events and register for updates on the subject you are interested in. This includes career guidance, networking internationally, research assistance, mentoring, and cooperative teamwork.

IFERP is committed to offering highly specialized support to students, professionals, academic staff, institutions, businesses, research organizations, and also other educational institutions to collaborate on overcoming social challenges and advancing society.

The newsletter has a wealth of information, including on-demand conferences, scientific activities, lectures, book chapters, journals initiated, and much more.
